

AMBASSADORS CREED

Adapted from The Marva Collins Way

Society will draw a circle that shuts me out, but my superior thoughts will draw me in. I was born to win if I do not spend too much time trying to fail.

I will ignore the tags and names given my by society since only I know what I have the ability to become.

Failure is just as easy to combat as success to obtain. Education is painful and not gained by playing games. Yet, it is my privilege to destroy myself if that is what I choose to do.

I have the right to fail, but I do not have the right to take other people with me. I am the captain of only one life --my own.

It is my right to care nothing about myself, but I must be willing to accept the consequences for that failure, and I must never think that those who have chosen to work while I played, rested, and slept, will share their bounties with me

My success and my education can be a companion that no misfortune can depress, no crime can destroy, no enemy can alienate.

Without education, man is a slave, a savage wandering from here to there believing whatever they are told.

Time and chance comes to us all. I can either be hesitant or courageous. I can swiftly stand up and shout, "This is my time and place. I will accept the challenge.
